Technical Visit to the National Art Gallery Site

The proposed National Art Gallery, Singapore, is a new visual arts institution devoted to the research and exhibition of art from Singapore and Southeast Asia from the 19th Century to present day. Its permanent exhibitions will be complemented by international art exhibitions in partnership with world-renowned museums. The Gallery is located in the heart of the civic district at the City Hall and former Supreme Court buildings, two important heritage buildings symbolic of Singapore's nationhood.

The site visit focuses on the technical and engineering challenges in the construction of the Gallery. This visit aims to give the participants a brief insight on the design issues faced by the designers as well as the conservation challenges in the execution of the works by the contractors.
