As one of the main engines of growth for Singapore’s economy, the construction and the real estate industry need to respond and adapt quickly to changes in the ever-changing economic and business environments. Against a headwind of challenging global economy and outlook, what lies ahead for the various property markets? What will be the key opportunities, challenges and prospects for the built environment and property sectors in Singapore and the region in the coming years? These pertinent questions would be addressed by renowned speakers at this seminar.
