Experience the rainforest and challenge yourself on the Island location’s New Course. Considered the most challenging course at SICC, this course boasts of natural terrain, wildlife and rainforest as it is carved out of a natural virgin jungle. Since the course opened in 1965, it has undergone further improvements including reorganisation of its holes so that both nines return to the Island location Clubhouse.

The course, which covers 6,319m, was originally designed by UK’s Frank Pennink, one of the most famous architects of golf courses, and was officially opened in 1970 by Chief Justice Wee Chong Jin. British Open winner, Australia’s Peter Thomson, later took on the challenge of remodeling the course and upgraded it to a sand-based course boasting a state-of-the-art drainage system that allows the course to remain playable throughout the year.

The redeveloped New Course was opened in 2002 and the ceremony was officiated by former Prime Minister Goh Chok Tong.
All net proceeds goes to the Singapore Community Chest.
